

B'nai Israel Reform Temple Bulletin

Rabbi Rosenthal's Message

It's April, and spring is in the air. Besides much needed warmth, the season also brings hope, renewal, and rebirth. We finally emerge from the caverns of our houses and step outside, taking in the light, the buds on the trees and the new growth pushing its way to the surface.

Some of us look forward to gardening, walking outside, going to a park, or simply walking a beloved dog in warmer weather.

However we embrace this season, it is no coincidence that the holiday of Passover traditionally falls in this time frame. Passover at its heart is the story of redemption and rebirth. Following us as we travel from slavery to freedom and ultimately to a new homeland to begin anew.

The budding optimism that we feel with warmer weather and flowering blossoms is similar to the hope of reaching the promised land in the Exodus story that we retell in our Haggadah.

Passover is also the beginning of the agricultural season. That same hope also rested with the farmers of ancient times who thought about the promise of opportunity, the hope we attached to the growing and harvesting season.

The new season also brings us the opportunity to embrace new meanings and interpretations of this sacred holiday steeped in ritual and tradition. This year, CCAR press released a new Haggadah, Mishkan HaSeder. It is designed in a similar style as the dark blue shabbat Mishkan Tefillah and Mishkan HaNefesh (the new High Holy Day Prayerbook). This Haggadah is filled with prayers similar to what we know and remember. Yet, it looks beyond the familiar and explores the ideas behind the liturgy and the themes that are at the root of our Passover rituals with creative poetry. And while the poems may not appear to relate directly to the sections they are in, they absolutely bring to life new ways to think about each Seder step. As I examine it today in preparation for our Seder in March, I find that several of the lyrics and verses mention Spring and lift up the themes of resilience, optimism, and joy that are part of this awakening season.

A good example of this is in the karpas section where we find the blessing over the parsley or vegetable. Here we find two readings that almost stand in stark contrast to one another, both highlighting the idea of spring, one of the reasons we eat karpas. The first is "Arise My Love," lyrics from Debbie Freidman Z"L based on the Song of Songs. We read, "Rise up, my love, my fair one, and come away for lo, the winter's past, and the rain is gone; the flowers appear on the earth; the time of singing is come... the fig tree bringeth forth her green figs, and the vines in blossom bring forth their fragrance.."

In these joyous lyrics, we find love, and we take a moment to honor all that is fresh, new, and green; Friedman taps into several senses, including sight, smell and sound. It reads almost like an invitation to skip through the park and take in every new bud we can find. But Spring isn't just about renewal, it's also about where we are coming from. The Israelites have come from slavery and uncertainly, torture and bitter labor.

And so, recognizing this truth, at the bottom of the page, there is a poem called, "Instructions on Not Giving Up," by Ada Limón. It states, "More than the fuchsia funnels breaking out of the crabapple tree, more than the neighbor's almost obscene display of cherry limbs shoving their cotton candy blossoms to the slate sky of Spring rains, it's the greening of the trees that really gets to me. When all the shock of the white and taffy... leave the pavement strewn with confetti of aftermath, the leaves come. ...patient, plodding a green skin growing over whatever winter did to us, a return to the strange idea of continuous living despite the mess of us, the hurt, the empty. Fine then, I'll take it the trees seems to say, a new slick leaf unfurling like a fist to an open palm, I'll take it all."

Ada's poem focuses on a resilience, and the promise that hope, greenery and Spring will indeed emerge each year bringing a renewal after the hurt and emptiness of winter. To have the spring we still need the bleak winter from where it comes. We can't give up, just because it gets rough, spring is here, and with it the promise of a new tomorrow.

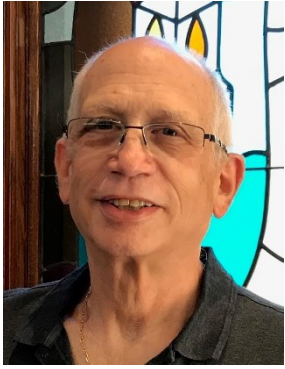

Let's take that to heart as we celebrate the second half of our Passover holiday this April.

Spring is here; let us take to heart the difficult and the beautiful dimensions of this season. And may the poetry of our holiday fill our souls with hope and renewal. Chag Sameach!

President's Message

Paul Weber

Dear Friends,

Thank you to Rabbi Rosenthal, Cantor Ilana, and everyone else who contributed to or participated in our beautiful Temple Passover Seder. Thank you for making it a special evening for us. I hope that everyone was able to experience meaningful seders and that you are enjoying the last few days of eating matzah.

I know that I am looking forward to some nice fresh bread, pizza, and Chinese food! It seems like so long ago, when our kids were little, our "Weber tradition" was breaking Passover with good friends at a Chinese buffet. Buffets are probably a thing of the past. However, G-d willing, we will be able to enjoy some of life's simple pleasures again soon.

Like the holiday of Passover and the season of Spring, which both instill in us thoughts of rebirth and new beginnings, we are looking forward to our "rebirth" here at B'nai Israel. Our Reopening committee along with the Building and Grounds committee are working diligently together to implement safe outdoor services/gatherings for the coming months. They are also working to get our buildings in shape to start the reopening process as well.

Let us look at this exciting prospect as a "new beginning" for all of us. It will be a process. This process will be new to all of us. We will have to adhere to strict protocols and take every safety precaution. We must be forever mindful of our health and the health of others. We also have to be inclusive to everyone. This process will be no easy task.

There is now a light shining at the end of the long tunnel that we have been navigating. May G-d keep us all safe and well. Until we are all physically together again...

Shalom,

Paul

Reopening Committee

Seth Berman

As the season turns from winter to spring we are looking forward to be able to offer outdoor services again. The first service will be May 28th at 7 PM, weather permitting. Once again this will be limited to 30 people. If more than 30 people are registered we will be doing a random drawing. Please watch our weekly email, website, and Facebook page for a registration link.

As you are reading this, a full evaluation of our HVAC system is being preformed. MERV 13 filters have been installed into our existing system. The question is, can we make it better by replacing a system that is nearing the end of its life cycle?

The committee is finalizing a set of "benchmarks" that when met will trigger us being able to hold some services in the building. This does not mean that the Zoom service will go away. We will try an integrate that experience into the in person services.

Our first inside event has been scheduled! Please consider giving the gift of life and join us at our Blood Drive on 4/26. See the information in this bulletin for more details.

Looking forward to seeing every one soon!

Seth C. Berman
Chair Re-Opening Committee

Emergency Blood Drive at B'nai Israel!

Joel Silverman

Having canceled three annual blood drives during the past year, we were approached by the Long Island Blood Center to help now by re-opening our Temple for a Blood Drive in our social hall on Monday, April 26th, from 1:00 to 7:00 PM.

With blood donations limited to the Blood Center's fixed locations during most of the pandemic, a Blood Emergency was declared on March 15th. As we approach a historical shortage during the Passover/Easter period, the supply on hand is already at a critically low level. And B'nai Israel can help!

We have been assured that Covid-19 protocols in place and fine-tuned over the past year in their own facilities will be strictly adhered to, including temperature checks, masks, social distancing, cleanliness, etc. To avoid crowding and limiting wait times, every donor is encouraged to make an appointment. Although we always welcome walk-ins, due to the above, they will be handled on a space-available basis only.

The three vaccines available in the United States at this time impose no restrictions on the ability to donate. Wellness protocols require that a donor be healthy at the time of the donation and other long-standing limitations based on travel and medications remain in effect. Please make a note on your calendar and call the Temple Office 631-563-1660 to make an appointment that is convenient for you.

To expedite check-in, bring your Donor Card if you have one and a picture ID. Teens may donate at 16 years old with written permission from a parent and seniors beginning at age 75 require written permission from a physician.

As always, sign up eligible family and friends. Blood donations have never been as important as they are right now!

Thank you.

The poster is designed to look like a red medical clipboard with a white label. The background is light blue with faint white medical symbols like plus signs and circles. The text on the white label is as follows:

“Community is the human expression of Divine love. It is where I am valued simply for who I am, how I live and what I give to others. It is the place where they know my name.”

~Rabbi Jonathan Sacks

What is the goal?

Our congregation is a family, a warm and vibrant place full of individuals who want to genuinely support, nurture and be present for one another.

The goal of our small groups is to help build upon that core, to really get to know the people in our congregation. Small groups or circles help us all to find a special group of people that feel like family and home within the congregation.

What is a circle?

A group of 10 or less people who create an intimate space open for genuine dialogue and connection through a shared journey and interest. Small groups allow us to be heard, to connect on a deeper level, and to embrace one another outside of the Synagogue walls.

Circles are not classes, social clubs or group therapy, although there will be learning, support and enjoyment.

Our pilot circles will have specific themes such as Mussar (How do we live our everyday life?), Here all Along (finding meaning and connection through Sarah Hurwitz's new insights to discovering the beauty and value that exist within Judaism), and Becoming a Soulful Parent (exploring the challenges and the joys of navigating parenthood through discussion, listening and sharing).

What is your commitment?

Agree to participate in five, one-hour online sessions, and one intro session all together (on Sunday, April 18th in the late afternoon) that take place over a couple of months. Read the chapter of the book your circle is sharing before each session. Commit to listening, sharing and participating with honesty and integrity. And agree to be open to the exciting and meaningful experience of connecting to new people in the congregation.

Mussar Circle

Book: Everyday Holiness: The Jewish Spiritual Path of Mussar, by Alan Morinis
If interested, email Sandy Weber: sandra.weber654@gmail.com

Are there particular situations that cause you to “lose your cool”?

Do you, or someone you know, tend to dominate a conversation or discussion?

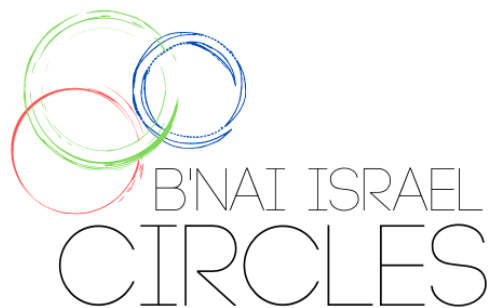

Do you wish to simplify and add more order to your life?

Are you able to always look for the good in a person or situation?

In this Circle, we will foster relationships with each other as we explore Jewish values such as patience, humility, gratitude, and order. We will discover and share ways to achieve more balance in our lives. Together, we will practice opening our hearts to our better selves.

Dates: 7:00 pm - 8:00 pm on the following Monday nights: April 19th, April 26th, May 3rd, May 10th, May 24th.

Becoming a Soulful Parent Circle

Book: Becoming a Soulful Parent: A Path to the Wisdom Within, by Dasee Berkowitz

If interested, email Rabbi Rosenthal: rabbi@bnai-israel.org

We will look for inspiration from a book that combines Jewish wisdom with first-person storytelling. Together our goal is to create a nourishing space where we can connect. We will listen and support one another as we cultivate our own inner wisdom as parents, partners (or individuals) and people. In a time when parenting of all ages is a completely new experience, let's pool our collective wisdom, empathy and patience- or lack thereof.

Dates: 4:30– 5:30 pm, on the following Sunday evenings: April 18th, April 25, May 2nd, May 16th May 23rd

Here All Along Circle

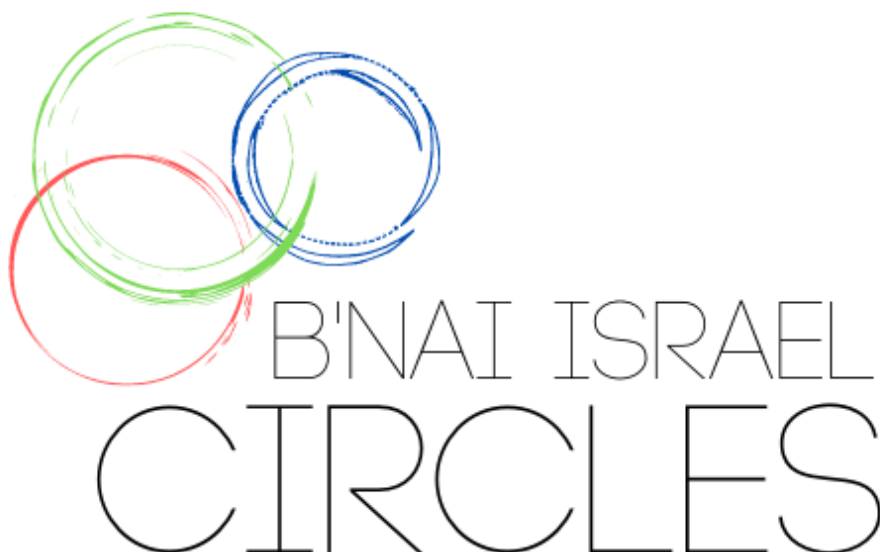

Book: Here All Along, by Sarah Hurwitz

If interested, email Paul Fink: paulfink505@icloud.com

We will draw inspiration from a journey of rediscovering the beauty of Judaism through the eyes of Sarah Hurwitz, a speech writer for Michelle Obama.

Would you like to learn or relearn about Judaism as a grownup, explore different perceptions of God, observances, and the many ways to be a good person and perform mitzvot? In this group, we will get to know each other, share our individual beliefs and religious journey, and read Here All Along, in a friendly and supportive environment.

Dates: 7:00 – 8:00 on the following Wednesday nights: April 21st, April 28th, May 5th, May 12th, and May 19th.

WOMEN OF REFORM JUDAISM
stronger together

Sisterhood Newsletter

Sisterhood is a tight knit group of women whose goal is to reach out to our temple family and to each other. We have tried so hard this year to stay connected by using Zoom and by doing some safe outdoor activities as the weather cooperates.

Last month we managed to have a very successful and fun Passover sale via Zoom. Many of you purchased some beautiful items for your own seder tables. We also had an amazing virtual Women's Seder led by Joi Garvin. Her creativity is phenomenal, and the event was well attended and fun. Thanks to Joi, Sandy, Alice, Karen, Ellen, Shari, Thea, Debbie, Sharon, and Jenn for all the help you put in to make these events happen.

We will be having another virtual sale April 27th. Many Mitzvahs and special occasions take place in May and June such as Mother's Day, Confirmations, graduations, Father's Day, and "Buy yourself something special day" to lift your spirits. This is an easy way to shop. I will be posting some of the jewelry and gift items on the Temple Facebook page. Please feel free to purchase before the sale date

Lastly, I would like you to know that our gift shop sells many beautiful tallises and yarmulkes for Bar and Bat Mitzvahs. See details below. You can make an appointment to see them by contacting me.

Stay healthy and get vaccinated. We want to be able to be together in person soon.
